ANNUAL REPORT, SIMONE DE BEAUVOIR INSTITUTE, 1996-1997

During the June 1, 1996 to May 31, 1997 period, the Institute has undergone changes and improvements in the following areas:

1) Administration: On January 30, 1997 Concordia University Provost/Vice-Rector Research, Dr. Jack Lightstone tabled a document entitled Our Immediate Future which recommended the closure of the Simone de Beauvoir Institute and the transfer of the Women's Studies programmes to an unnamed department. This news, which the Institute members were the last to receive, resulted in disbelief and a state of turmoil, both within Concordia and on a local, national and international level. Hence, the academic year, 1996-97, particularly the winter term, will go down in the Institute's history as the year of threatened closure, downsizing or "restructuring." It soon became evident to us that the Administration who had never consulted us about the proposed closure, based its decision on misconceptions, faulty information, biased statistics and an overall ignorance of the particular mission of the Institute. For the record, let me summarize what we stand for, and why any plan to jeopardize our autonomy and mission would be extremely misguided, not only for women and minorities--whom Concordia purports to serve--but to the very reputation of Concordia University itself.

The Simone de Beauvoir Institute was founded in 1978 as the first Women's Studies Institute in North America with a mission "to serve the university and the larger community through research, teaching, and community participation." The Lightstone document recommends separating the Women's Studies Programmes from the Institute without realizing that they are one, representing our creative and effective blending of theory, practice and community consultation.

Closing the Institute would be detrimental to the intellectual life of Concordia University and to the Ontario-Quebec scholarly community. Furthermore, the Institute is more than an annex, it has become a symbol. Over the years it has established itself as a site where diverse women's organizations have been able to meet, network and get support. The Institute simply is the physical and spiritual heart of Concordia, the embodiment of its mission statement.

The Women's Studies programmes must not be annexed to another department because we are an autonomous discipline in our own right. Removing the programmes and destroying the Institute's research function would result in an actual loss of funds to Concordia. Since 1986 the Institute's Research Associates have attracted large research grants to the University.

Women's Studies being one of the most rapidly expanding areas of knowledge in universities, new programmes are being implemented throughout the world. What is unique about the Institute is precisely that it has provided a model for an interdisciplinary women's college playing an important role in the community.

According to Mcleans' survey of Canadian universities, Simone de Beauvoir Institute stands out as one of Concordia's unique features; The Globe and Mail referred to the Institute as one of the best-known autonomous colleges that have helped establish Concordia's reputation for innovative teaching. This creative tradition, indeed, has continued in the numerous pedagogical workshops that the Institute has organized in recent years.

The Institute provides a sanctuary not only for students and faculty within Concordia but also for independent feminist scholars from around the world. The Documentation Centre with its 3000 monographs, 300 journals and vertical files containing 257 headings is used extensively by researchers worldwide and by students from all Montreal universities. We produce a scholarly journal, the Simone de Beauvoir Institute Review/Revue de l'Institut Simone de Beauvoir which is exchanged with over 40 international academic institutions. This helps put Concordia on the map worldwide.

The activism and the specific "Save-the-Institute Campaign" to which the Lightstone document led, resulted in the creation of several ad hoc committees serving the strengthening of the Institute and the collection of data and statistics that could be used to prove the academic, economic and mission-related viability of the Institute (see Appendix A). Students, faculty, part-timers, Fellows and Research Associates and Adjunct Fellows united their forces to begin a campaign that included writing letters and e-mailing women's studies scholars, activists and high profile thinkers/activists around the world. The response was extremely supportive; we received over 200 letters from national and international communities, including letters to Dr. Kailo and Dr. Lowy from such noted feminists as Gloria Steinem and Lise Payette. Students wrote more than 432 letters to protest the planned closing of the Institute, and letters continue to arrive at Concordia at this stage. I also wrote letters internally within Concordia, to invite all female faculty to become involved, or to renew their ties, with the Simone de Beauvoir Institute. Not only was the Institute soliciting letters of support for Simone de Beauvoir Institute but also for our Documentation Centre, for losing it would be a great loss to Concordia and to women's research in general, both locally and nationally.

In my own letters written as Acting Principal during the crises, I stressed the importance for Concordians themselves of recognizing that the Institute is one of the university's externally well-known, but internally unrecognized resources. The fact sheet sent to prove our viability and importance is included among the annexes of the Annual Report (See Appendix A).

The appendices also include information about the media campaign undertaken to raise consciousness about the importance of the Institute; several members of the Institute participated in the various TV and radio programmes, and press interviews (see Outside Representations, Appendix F) which sought to publicize the campaign and to raise awareness about the implications of the potential closing/restructuring of the Simone de Beauvoir Institute.

While the winter term 1997 was extremely hectic and stormy, it was also one during which the Institute members felt more united than ever before. The feeling of solidarity and connection not only helped consolidate the status of the Institute in terms of data that would be of importance for the Administration, but also in terms of our research: to mention one example our newly renamed Simone de Beauvoir Institute Review/Revue de l'Institut Simone de Beauvoir has a special issue, this Spring, dedicated to "Healing Politics--Violence, Culture and Alternative Health." Containing many submissions from Institute members, it bears testimony to what the Institute represents at its best: the integration of research, teaching and community consultation. Thus, the issue has several articles on alternative health and healing from members of the Institute, Adjunct Fellows, representing the community; among others, Laverne Contois, President of Aboriginal Women of Montreal and Diana Yaros, Mouvement contre l'incest et l'abuse sexuel, counsellor and co-founder provide important grass-roots perspectives on issues to do with violence against women and on culture-specific, individually-sensitive healing strategies.

Appendix A of this Annual Report provides the details that this introduction does not have space to elaborate on; they demonstrate and attest to the dedication of our members to preserving the unique and important role of the Simone de Beauvoir Institute as a unique women's studies unit and community-consulting Institute. May it retain its mandate and autonomous role, and not get watered down by administrative restructuring that is insensitive to the needs of women's studies and women, 51% of the student population in Concordia.

RECENT AND CURRENT MEMBERSHIP

All students enrolled in Women's Studies programs are members of the Institute. The Women's Studies Students Association is active as a voice for students within and outside the Institute, providing a place for dialogue and liaison with other feminist and social justice groups within Concordia.

The Institute had 3.5 faculty positions; this dropped to 2.5 (now tenured) in 1994, including the Principal. These professors teach courses, tutor students and direct student research, as well as supervise student community projects. The Institute has been fortunate in being able to hire highly qualified instructors, usually 5 or 6 per year, to teach in our programmes on a sessional basis. Approximately a dozen Fellows participate in the Institute each year; they are fulltime faculty in a variety of departments at Concordia. In addition, anywhere from 10 to 17 Research Associates (Independent Scholars) participate in the Fellows Seminars, organize events, contribute to the Bulletin, and provide additional resources for students and faculty. There are two Honourary Fellows: Jo Vellacott, SSHRC Research Fellow - History; Patricia Morley, Professor Emeritus of English.

TEACHING:

The Institute has 2.5 fulltime tenured faculty members (formerly 3.5), which includes the Principal. Women's Studies Programs are interdisciplinary and include Major, Specialization, Minor, Certificate. Total student enrolment in programs has been steady at approximately 100. Women's Studies courses are taken by over 400 students.

Undergraduates from all faculties take courses and are members of the Institute, in addition to graduate students in the S.I.P. programs and the Ph.D in Humanities doing research in women's studies.

Costs for undergraduate courses are at the A & S average. Courses are taught in English and in French.

Innovative teaching (inclusivity and difference) has been supported by grants, workshops, visiting lecturers, which have benefitted many faculty and students within Arts and Science. The Institute draws students to the University from within and outside the Province who would not otherwise come to Concordia. Students are mentored into the academic world and community participation through conference presentations, publications, community projects and internships, and full participation in the activities of the Institute.

Student Medals Awards: The Thérèse Casgrain Medal; the Marjorie S. Dewitz Bursary, the Maïr Verthuy Scholarship; the Provost Entrance Scholarship.

Our graduates have been highly successful in pursuing graduate degrees in Women's Studies (10 of 17 accepted for MA program at Simone Fraser were Institute graduates), Law, Humanities, Social Science, Science at universities in Canada, the United States and the United Kingdom. Because many Institute students have to go to other provinces for graduate work in Women's Studies, an inter-disciplinary MA including Women's Studies is currently being explored.

RESEARCH AT THE INSTITUTE FELLOWS RESEARCH SEMINAR

Since the mid-1980s the faculty and fellows of the Institute have held regular research seminars in which conference papers, working papers, research reports, book chapters in progress, and in-progress research projects are presented. Between 8 and 15 seminars, in which generally two papers are given, take place each year. These seminars have not only been the testing ground for numerous articles, books, and conference papers, but most importantly have created an interdisciplinary community of scholars concerned with a spectrum of research questions and issues on women. Themes of the seminar have included: Women's Biography/Autobiography; Feminisms and Nationalism; Motherhood and Maternity; and Women and Healing. These topics have provided focus to the seminars, which do not, however, exclude papers on other topics. Approximately 20-25 full and part-time faculty, research associates, postdocs, and colleagues from other universities regularly participate.

APPENDIX B

REPORT ON THE READING ROOM/DOCUMENTATION CENTRE

submitted by Carol Mitchell

Statistics

Number of people using the Reading Room: 2,256 (June 1, 1996 - May 31, 1997).

New patrons registered: 162: breakdown: 32 Women's Studies students, 121 Concordia students from other disciplines, 9 patrons from outside Concordia. (Note: students already in the programme are not included in these figures.)

Reference questions: 2,107

Loans: 761

Reserves requests: 250

Monographs purchased: 25

Monographs added to collection: 63 (processed, catalogued and shelved).

Periodical subscriptions renewed and/or begun: 24

The Reading Room continues to exchange publications with 12 Canadian and 29 international organizations.

Gifts and Donations

Dr. Mohini Anjum, an Adjunct Fellow from the University of New Delhi, donated a copy of her book as did guest lecturers and authors Joanne Arnott, Persimmon Blackbridge, Drucilla Cornell, Louky Bersianik and Minnie Bruce Pratt. Dr. Gail Valaskakis donated books, articles and reference material which will prove extremely useful for students interested in women in communications. Students have also been generous in their book donations to the Reading Room.

Work Study Programme

This year we received funding from the Financial Aid Office to hire a student (we did not receive funding for the 1995 -1996 year) and hence we were able to extend the Reading Room hours once again. Premela Isaac, a student who is pursuing a degree in Economics and Women's Studies, held this position for both semesters and her pleasant manner was much appreciated. (It should be noted, however, that quite a bit of time is required for training so not all the hours are productive.) Half of the funds for the student come from the salary allotted for the documentalist and the other half from the Work Study Programme. This enables us to keep the Reading Room open for approximately 26 hours per week during most of the semester. However, during the first two weeks and last month of each semester the hours are reduced as there are no funds to pay for the additional hours. This is insufficient to meet the students' demands.

Volunteers

Muriel Ward, a former Library Studies student who did her fieldwork in the Reading Room in 1994, continues to help with filing clippings in the vertical files.

Visitors

There have been approximately 15 international visitors to the Reading Room over the past year. The Reading Room is also frequented by students from McGill, Université de Montreal and several CEGEPs and high schools.

Concerns

Despite requests there is still no satisfactory alarm or panic button available for the Reading Room. This is essential as the location is isolated and often there is only one person working in the building, especially in the evening.

We are rapidly running out of space despite using cupboards and a bathroom for storage. There is also some concern that eventually the weight distribution of the collection may prove too much for the present premises. Ideally, we need at least one more room.

As the Reading Room is not automated, Susan Sullivan spends several hours per month doing the necessary secretarial work. She makes lists of new holdings, prepares cheque requisitions, forms and any necessary correspondence sent by the documentalist.

All in all, this has been a busy, successful year for the Reading Room.
